“ Oh Miss Jeanne....

I know I haven't seen you since I was kid, I still remember always being over your house and how you always made me feel like I was part of the family. I'll never forget times where I could open up to you about my own troubles and would just listen and know exactly what to say and when to say it to put a troubled young man's mind at ease. Heck, I still remember the sound of your voice, clear as day.

The world is already a lesser place without you in it...

“Jeanne was my youngest sibling. I miss her laugh and her tendency to always come up with facts to throw into our conversations. There were times when I had to remind her that I was 15 years older and was out of high school before she was out of grade school. She didn't always like that! I will miss her very much and hope she is at peace. All my love sister. I miss you.

Jeanne was my cousin. I have many fond memories of Jeanne while growing up. As adults we didn't see one another as much due to no longer close to one another. When we did see each other as adults one memory Jeanne would routinely mention was that a friend of our cousin Mary Frances by the name of Cathy Smithwick and I took her to see her first Star Wars movie in 1980. I guess she really enjoyed it. I'll miss seeing Jeanne and hearing that memory.

I remember the joy in the Morrison family when Jeanne was born, and how happy they were when she came home from the hospital. Joan and Eileen, in particular, were delighted to have a little sister to round out the sibling group to three boys and three girls. I have been blessed to be a part of so many Morrison family events. I will always remember the holidays, the dinners, the picnics, and the games that were played at the dining room table. My heart is with you now and always.
